

BRIDGE WORK:
Rod Price works on the new bridge at the Maramarua Golf Club.

Golfers club together making hazard

Volunteers have recently finished an ambitious project at the Maramarua Golf Club.

The eighth green has been extended and the water hazard which guards it lined with stones, producing a spectacular result.

The planning and initiative of Rod Price and Ean McRobbie has meant this has been achieved at no cost to the club.

It is no secret that golf clubs are finding times difficult at present, so, when members can start and finish projects like this, everyone should be impressed.

The stone came from quarries at McPhersons Rd and Rainbow Mountain, with backload cartage donated.

Excavator work was courtesy of McRobbie with turf and topsoil being on hand at the golf club. Planning and turf laying was Price's effort with his team of volunteers.

In the space of a week the whole golf hole was changed. A stone bridge is being completed to finish the project.